

Red Bull CRASHED ICE SAINT PAUL

ICE CROSS DOWNHILL WORLD CHAMPIONSHIP 2013

POCKET GUIDE

WELCOME TO RED BULL CRASHED ICE

The Red Bull Crashed Ice World Championship event showcases the sport of Ice Cross Downhill. Athletes race four at a time, shoulder-to-shoulder, down a man-made ice track. Dressed in full pads, helmets and hockey skates they maneuver through hairpin turns, harrowing drops and intimidating jumps all while reaching speeds up to 40 mph. Athletes advance through bracketed competition with the event's four fastest skaters earning a spot in the Saturday night final.

After the visit of the World Championship here in 2012, this year's track promises to be one of the most difficult in the series, with a number of gravity-defying elements for athletes to contend with. Record crowds are expected to come and root for Team USA, this year's stop in Saint Paul is one not to be missed.

MAKING HISTORY. AGAIN.

OVER TEN YEARS AGO, an adrenaline junkie over in Europe got the urge to race down a bobsled course on skates. Soon after, the sport of ice-cross downhill was born. Fast forward to today and there's a globe-spanning World Championship event series that draws hundreds of thousands of spectators to its icy, urban courses.

The 2012-13 season sees five World Championships happening, each a unique opportunity for athletes to earn points and skate their way to the 2013 Red Bull Crashed Ice World Champion crown.

THE COURSE

BUILDING THE GIANT

Track Length: 400 Meters
Start Ramp: 48' High
Vertical Drop: 40 Meters
Days to Build: 20
Gallons of Water: 25,000

1. START RAMP

The key to the entire race. An 8-meter drop out the gate, it's important that racers get to the front of the pack early to own their line.

2. FLOATER

Not the largest jump on the course, but it will throw off skaters' balance because of speed they'll have coming off the start ramp. This will separate the rookies from the pros early on in the course.

3. DAYTON ROLLERS

Crossing over Dayton Avenue athletes will encounter dual rollers. It is vital for them to gauge whether to gap them or absorb.

4. STAIR TURN

Skaters will need to gain speed as they go over the steps of the Saint Paul Cathedral, driving momentum over the Summit Avenue Bridge.

5. DOWNTOWN DROP

Racers will be in full stride coming over the summit bridge. They will then take a 1-meter drop to gain speed and hopefully make it over Hangman Hill.

6. HANGMAN HILL

The equalizer. It is the largest wall ride in the event's history at 16 feet tall. Ideally, athletes want to be near top speed and in front of the pack when they reach the incline on this obstacle.

7. WAVES

Athletes need to time their jump on this double bump feature so they clear the gap, taking off from the top of the first peak and landing on the decline of the second one.

8. FINAL BRIDGE

It comes down to seconds, athletes need to keep their blades on the ice as much as possible to absorb the bump created by this spectator bridge.
